Author

S.M. De Silva (Samantha) spends most of her time in imagined worlds and the remainder of her time trying to wrestle them into her notebook. She adores monsters, caffeine, Turkish chilli, and good stories, in no particular order. You can find out more about her at www.samanthadesilva.com.

Guest Speaker

Marc Nair is a writer, photographer and teacher. He has published two full-length books of poetry, most recently 'Chai: Travel Poems' in 2010. He is also a regular at Poetry Slams in Singapore. He is currently working on a new idea for a novel as well as banging out a short film screenplay. Find out more at www.marcnair.com or read his articles at www.twntysmthg.sg.

Facilitator

Sangeetha Madhavan is a freelance writer and editor with a keen interest in the arts, culture, media and travel. Her picture book A Blue Cat's Tale (Straits Times Press) was published under the First Time Writers and Illustrators Publishing Initiative 2008. Sangeetha also blogs on books and theatre for children at mamasez.squarespace.com.

Supernatural species consultant, Alegria Sequeira, 26, is about to leave for her best friend's wedding on her Aprilia when she receives a severed finger in a box. The postmark: Sleet City. With the box come graphic photos of her sister being brutalized by vampires.

As Alegria gets sucked into the disturbing underbelly of vampire society, she finds herself being forced to make choices that slowly destroy her humanity and threaten to turn her into the very creature she fears the most.
